Student Behavior Agreement

Throughout the ITEST Workshop, we ask and expect a certain level of maturity and behavior from our students. We ask students to remember that they are representing themselves and their schools and were invited as guests of the University of Kentucky. During the conference students will be expected to:

Be courteous to other students participating in the conference

Be respectful of all conference instructors and staff

Arrive promptly at all conference events and meetings

Refrain completely from using any controlled substance unless used for medical reasons only

Adhere to all conference rules including computer use, hotel electronics use, conference perimeters, curfews, etc.

Most importantly, students must agree to come prepared to learn and to enjoy this conference. We expect that our students make the most of this unique opportunity.

These rules are simple and they are based on a system of respect. The instructors and the staff are excited to work with each student and will respect each of the students for their willingness to learn and to participate. With that said, we expect that each student will be respectful and courteous to all conference instructors and staff.

By signing this agreement, the student and the parent understand the rules and expectations of the conference. The result of breaking any of these rules will be dismissal from the program.
